

Certainly it's not only competition and work that make up the life of a happy Bouvier des Flandres: Without fun and a highly developed trust built between the dog and "his family" he would hardly show such constant performance. Best proof of confidence is given when the dog can act out his need of fun to the full. Some of those situations you can find here.